When I picked up The Perfect Club during our testing session, I couldn't help but look at my colleagues, lower my voice few swings with the short, offset utility stick, I realized this club is no joke. At 39 inches in length, it's shorter than a fairway wood, and its offset, 21-degree metal-wood-style head has plenty of weight positioned low to help get the ball up with a draw bias. It may not be 'Perfect,' but it works.
